

Giving Kindness Gifts

Kindness Every Day

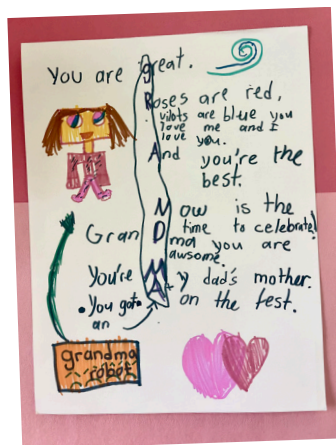

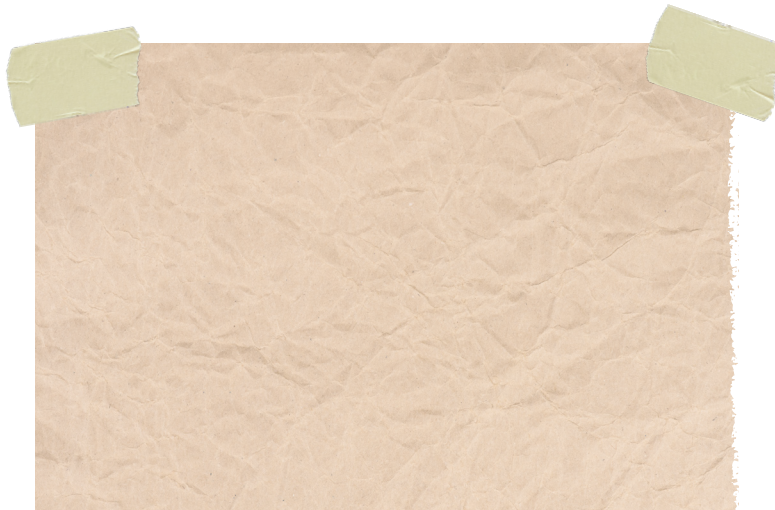

RESPOND to the season of holiday gift giving with a creative personal touch. Identify family members or friends to whom you might give a handcrafted gift. For each individual, jot down their interests and what makes your relationship with that person special. You will use these notes to create and customize a handmade drawing, game, poem, or song.

AND THE GIFT
YOU WILL CREATE.

CREATE drawings, poems, games, or songs for your family and friends. Use the space on this Thinking Sheet to create a draft of each gift that you'll edit and modify before you put each on a separate sheet of colorful paper.

CONNECT the personal gift with a unique way to wrap it. Refer to your notes on this person's interests. Consider how the gift wrap can express kindness and showcase the special connection you feel with this person.

Could you find a colorful newspaper or magazine image that pertains to your shared interests? Consider unusual shapes; for example, what if you decorated paper and taped it over a recycled oatmeal canister, or added visual symbols to a mailing tube? Could this gift fit into an envelope that you decorate? What would be a unique, creative way of wrapping each gift?

PRESENT your customized handmade gift to each person on your list. Find a place that connects to the special relationship you have and a time when there won't be many distractions. Or consider how a phone or video call could help you present the gift to someone who is far away. It is wonderful to see each other's faces, in person or virtually, when presenting a handcrafted gift of kindness. Remember the joy of this experience so you provide additional kindness gifts not just during the holiday season, but throughout the year.
